

AOA Burns Conservation Demonstration Site Preserve

A small crew burned the prairies on AOA's Conservation Demonstration Site Preserve located along the Hocking River in Rockbridge. Prescribed fires are an important tool in the management of native prairies, helping to remove dead vegetation and controlling the invasion of woody plants. Prairie plants are adapted to the cyclical burning and respond well to fire. AOA will take this opportunity to supplement the existing prairie vegetation with new native prairie seed to improve the plant diversity on the site.
